(Q1.) India's stand on environmental issues at the international level is as follows :-

- (1) India supports the principle of 'common but differentiated responsibility' and believes that the rich and developed countries, i.e. Global North has more responsibility in preserving the environment than the poor and developing countries, i.e., Global South, as they have contributed more in the ecological degradation.
- (2) India believes that the priority for developing countries is development over environmental conservation because they still have to grow economically. So, the same sanctions must not be imposed on them as the ones imposed on developed countries as they have already industrialised.
- (3) At the UN Meeting, India also emphasised that the per capita greenhouse emissions of the developing countries is much less than that of the developed countries.

(4) India signed the 1997 Kyoto Protocol in 2002 when developing countries such as India, China, etc. were exempted from the restrictions imposed on greenhouse gas emissions.

(5) India also participated in the Rio Summit in 1992 to support and promote ecological conservation. It also signed the Paris Climate Control Agreement in 2016.

(6) India also believes that the developed countries should provide the developing countries with the resources and technology so that they can fulfil their commitments made to the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Control (UNFCCC).

(7) Even at the domestic level, India has implemented many programmes and policies for environmental protection, such as -

- (a) National ^{Auto-Fuel} ~~Biodiesel~~ ~~FBS~~ Policy
- (b) Electricity Act, 2003

- (g) Energy conservation Act, 2001
 (d) National Mission on Bio-diesel.

(Q2) In 1947, British India was divided into two countries - India and Pakistan. This led to a massive, painful and abrupt Partition, leading to the following consequences -

(1) Killings ⇒ The minorities on both sides were killed by the majority community. More than 5 lakh people died in partition-related violence. Cities like Lahore, Amritsar and Kolkata were converted into 'communal zones'

(2) Atrocities and immense sufferings ⇒ People were tortured, maimed, looted and treated as 'undesirable aliens' in their own ancestral land. People also had to face the atrocities by police during Partition.

(3) Atrocities against women ⇒ Many women were abducted from their homes, and were forced into marriage for forceful conversion of religion. Many men killed the women of their own families to protect their 'family honour'.

(4) Refugee Problem \Rightarrow Around 80 lakh people were forced to migrate from their homes during Partition.

They sometimes had to travel on foot, and were often killed, tortured or raped during their journey.

Even then they were forced to seek refuge in temporary refugee camps.

(5) Division of Financial Assets \Rightarrow Assets such as Tables, chairs, paperchips, marching band instruments were divided between the two countries. Even the government staff was divided during Partition.

(6) Competing Political Interests \Rightarrow After Partition, Pakistan had become an Islamic Nation. There were Hindu religions

⇒ Thus, the partition was described as a 'division of hearts' by many writers and poets.

(Q25) The Congress Party was split in 1969 in 2 different parties, i.e., Congress (Organisation) and Congress (Requisitionists). The events that led to the split were as follows :-

(a) Increasing Factionalism ⇒ Congress had senior and influential members, known as Syndicate, that controlled the party's organisation.

(b) In 1967, the Syndicate played a major role in appointing Indira Gandhi as the Prime Minister after the death of Lal Bahadur

Shashi. They thought that that the inexperience and political immaturity of Indira Gandhi will force her to depend on the Syndicate for support and guidance.

(a) However, soon after becoming PM, Indira sidelined the Syndicate and asserted her leadership by choosing her own trusted group of advisers outside the party. Thus, the Syndicate was upset with Indira.

(b) Left Orientation \Rightarrow (a) After losing dominance in 1967 Lok Sabha elections, Indira tried to regain the ground lost by Congress by implementing certain programmes to gain support from Dalits, SC/STs, minorities, Adivasis, unemployed youth, etc.

(b) She also introduced 10-point programme with the following features.

- Public Distribution of Foodgrains, etc.

(c) Though the Syndicate formally supported these programmes, but they actually opposed them and criticised Indira Gandhi for such measures.

(3) Presidential Elections ⇒ The final event that led to the split of Congress were the presidential elections in 1969 that were held after the death of Zakir Hussain.

(a) The Congress nominated N. Sanjeera Reddy, who was the then Lok Sabha Speaker and rival of Indira, as the official candidate of Congress. The Syndicate issued a leaflet instructing the MLAs and MPs to vote for official candidate.

(b) In opposition to this, Indira encouraged V. V. Giri (the Vice President) to file nomination as an independent candidate. Indira silently supported him by calling for a 'conscience Voter' asking elected MLAs and MPs to vote in whatever way they want.

- (c) Pakistan is also held responsible by the Indian government to support terrorism, insurgency and secessionist movement in the state which is causing immense violence.
- (iii) Intervention of ^{Centre} ~~state~~ in the state politics.
- (a) When Jammu & Kashmir was acceded into India, it was said that the internal autonomy of the state would be maintained. For this purpose, Article 370 and 371 granted special provisions for the state.

(b) However, the people believe that the centre continuously intervenes in the state politics. For example, it dismissed Sheikh Abdullah and Farooq Abdullah and imposed President's Rule in the ~~centres~~ state.

(iii) ~~L&P~~ Secessionist movements

- (a) In addition to Centre's intervention, people were also dissatisfied by the inefficiency, corruption, lack of administration and democracy in India's north-eastern state.
- (b) By 1989, militant movements had begun demanding a separate state for Kashmiris. Some also wanted J&K to merge with Pakistan.
- (c) The army has also intervened to suppress the militants due to which many civilians have been killed among the militant and army violence.
- However, due to continuous violence and unrest, an era of peace has now been prevailing in the state. The Centre is trying to negotiate with the militants to end the cycle of violence.

Q22. The SOVIET SYSTEM had the following features:

- (1) The primacy was given to the state. All political parties other than the Communist Party were abolished and prohibited and controlled.
- (2) The economy was centrally planned by the state.
- (3) USSR had a vast communication and transportation network which connected even the most remote regions of the country.
- (4) USSR also had a huge domestic consumer industry that produced everything from pins to cars, though their quality did not match the West.

- (5) The state ensured well-being of the people by providing education and healthcare facilities.
- (6) There was no unemployment in the country though the per capita income was low.
- (7) However, people complained about a lack of democracy & as it had no accountability and people did not enjoy freedom of speech and expression.
- (8) Soviet Union spent large amounts of money on military expenditure to stockpile weapons of Mass Destruction to compete in the arms race with the United States of America.
- (9) Most of the Soviet communist countries had a military alliance formalised by the Warsaw Pact.

- (b) Intervention \Rightarrow India actively intervened in the Cold War by mediating between the two superpowers to reduce tensions. For example, Jawaharlal Nehru played an important role in mediating between the two Koreas during Korea War (1950-53).
- (iii) Two features of India's policy of Non-alignment were -
- (a) To avoid joining either of the alliances of the superpowers (neither NATO, nor Warsaw Pact).

(b) To prevent the other newly decolonised countries of Asia and Africa from joining the alliances so that they can form an independent foreign and security policy for their state.

Section C:

(ii) Periyar Purse refers to an assurance given to the Princes / Divers of Princely States that they will be allowed to retain their private property and the government will give them grants according to the extent, potential and revenue of the princely states.

(iii) At the time of independence, it did not become a major issue because at that time, the priority was to integrate the princely states to protect the unity and integrity of India. However, the Indians started to protest against this princely privilege later as it was against the principles of social equality and justice.

(iv) Thus, Indira Gandhi tried to abolish the Periyar Purse to appear the people and gain support for her party. She was however opposed by Morarji Desai (Deputy PM and Finance Minister) who said that it was a breach of faith with the parties.

(Q) Ques. Four criteria that have been proposed in recent years for new permanent and non-permanent members of the UN Security Council are as follows -

- (i) The country should be a major economic power.
 - (ii) The country should contribute regularly and significantly in the UN Budget.
 - (iii) The country should follow democracy and protect human rights of its people.
 - (iv) The country should have a significant population and represent diversity in cultural, ethnic, geographical and linguistic terms.
- ⇒ The reforms have been suggested to make the UN more representative of contemporary world politics as well as more equitably representative.

→ There are also differences among the countries on the proposed criteria. The differences exist over 'how much' economically or militarily a strong a country should be, or how population can be an asset as well as a liability, among many other such questions.

(i) It opposed state intervention in the economy and the centralised planning system in India.

(ii) It proposes lesser role of public sector and more role of private sector in a free economy.

(iii) It is against the licences and progressive tax regime in Indian economy.

- (iv) It is also against the socialist pattern of society which includes collective farming and land ceilings.
- ⇒ The Swatantra Party also believes that India should have closer ties with the US rather than Russia. It also opposes the Non-Alignment Policy of India.
 - ⇒ This party was recognised for these economic ideologies and thus gained the support of big industrialists, business men, landowners and princes.
 - ⇒ This party was led by Senior Congress Men such as C. Rajagopal Acharya, N.M. Munshi, R.C. Raniga and Minoo Masani who left the Congress Party in 1954 when Congress adopted a Socialist Pattern of Society.

Q13: Globalisation refers to the worldwide interconnectedness and 'four flows' of people, commodities, ideas and capital.

The arguments given by the advocates of economic globalisation are -

(a) Globalisation has led to the economic development of the countries. The Multi-national companies provide employment to people. They also provide Foreign Direct Investment which leads to the inflow of capital and technology of the West in developing countries.

(b) It has also helped the domestic companies to access the Western Markets and earn precious foreign exchange for their own countries. The competition with MNCs has also forced them to improve their quality.

(c) The ultimate benefit from globalisation is that consumers can get a huge variety of good-quality products at reasonable p

(d) The Internet also helped China, ASEAN expand their cooperation

⇒ However, there it works on exploitation of MNCs.

Q12: Two constraints

(1) Institutional. A legislature, reasonable policies.

(b) The international trade has increased worldwide and has also helped in normalising relations between countries. China, ASEAN, EU have utilised economic interventions to expand their influence. There is also greater economic cooperation in South Asia due to globalisation.

⇒ However, there are also some people who criticise economic globalisation as it works on principle of 'survival of fittest' and has led to exploitation of domestic companies who could not compete with MNCs.

Q12: Two constraints on the American Hegemony are —

(1) Institutional Architecture. ⇒ The American State has three institutions—legislature, executive and judiciary. These institutions balance power.

and keep a check on each other. This prevents authoritarian use of America's military power by the Executive branch.

(2) North Atlantic Treaty Organisation (NATO) \Rightarrow NATO is perhaps the only organisation in international community that can act as a constraint on American Hegemony. America is extremely interested in keeping NATO as its military alliance that adds to the hard power of the US. Thus, it can influence US policies to a certain extent.

\Rightarrow The major constraints of US are domestic and internal. This includes the open nature of American society as well. The media and people openly criticise the govt policies as they enjoy freedom of speech and expression. For example, many American lawmakers made moves to criticise American intervention in Vietnam.

(Q1) (a) The various aspects of Nuclear Policy of India are—

- (i) After Independence, Jawaharlal Nehru promoted nuclear disarmament to prevent arms race between the Superpowers. He believed that science and technology can be used for economic benefit of India. He therefore advocated use of nuclear energy for peaceful purposes and strongly opposed nuclear weapons.
- (ii) India also opposed the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty of 1968 by saying that it was discriminatory and selectively applicable. India believed that it would lead to the monopoly of five big-powers — US, Russia, UK, France and China in nuclear weapons. India also opposed the Comprehensive Test Ban Treaty.
- (iii) India conducted its first nuclear explosion experiment in 1974 in Pokhran. India justified that the experiment was meant for peaceful purposes.

(iv) India also conducted another nuclear experiment in 1998 to demonstrate its nuclear capabilities to the world. India justified it by suggesting that it was to protect the security interests of India as it is surrounded by many other nuclear - armed countries in Asia.

2019 (v) India's also nuclear doctrine of credible minimum nuclear deterrence professes 'no first use' of nuclear weapons to strengthen its commitment to International peace and nuclear disarmament.
